This review was commissioned by United Nations Population Fund, Asia Pacific Regional Office and conducted by Burnet Institute. Elissa Kennedy, Co-Programme Director Maternal, Child and Adolescent Health, Burnet Institute led the review, undertook the literature and policy review, and wrote the report. Karly Cini, Research Officer, Global Adolescent Health (Burnet Institute) and Nisaa Wulan, Research Officer, Global Adolescent Health (Burnet Institute) undertook the extraction, analysis and preliminary visualisations of quantitative data. Peter Azzopardi, Co-Head, Global Adolescent Health (Burnet Institute), provided guidance on the methodology and analysis and coauthored the report.

The authors wish to acknowledge Elizabeth Milne for undertaking the review of sexual and reproductive health in a digital age and preparing the initial draft of this section. Sincere gratitude also to Josephine Sauvarin, Advisor on Adolescents and Youth, UNFPA Asia Pacific Regional Office, for providing guidance on the methodology and extensive feedback on the draft report, and Maki Akiyama, Programme Analyst, Adolescents and Youth, UNFPA APRO for providing feedback and providing access to key findings from the 2019 sexuality education online youth survey and collating qualitative quotes from young people.
